Beal, the barber, has been on an enforced vacation this week. A few days ago while drying his hair he slipped in some way and sprained his hand. The wound has been treated and caused him considerable inconvenience, but is healing satisfactorily.

The Anvil Herald job department
this week completed and delivered to the local Methodist Church the Annual Calendar. While only a sixteen page booklet with cover, it had been delayed on account of shortage of material for setting it by hand. When we could get to it on our new machine it was completed in short order. Our Linotype gives us excellent facilities for handling pamphlet and booklet work, limiting us in output only to the capacity of the machine and our ability to purchase metal. We hope the buyers of this class of printing will help us to keep the machine earning by keeping it busy for us.

Edward J. Brucks, a former newspaper man of this place but now interested in a big job printing establishment in San Antonio, was in Hondo Monday afternoon and evening.
While here he gave the Anvil Herald's new Linotype an interested
"once-over" and pronounced it good to look at. Friends of his among this paper's readers will be pleased to know that Mr. Brucks's company is enjoying a lucrative patronage in the Alamo City. Mr. Brucks was accompanied by Mrs. Brucks and the children, who after spending the night with relatives, returned with him to San Antonio Tuesday.

John P. Southall, a former resident of Hondo, but who for a number of years has lived at Eagle Pass,
was greeting old friends in Hondo Monday. Mr. Southall noted little change in the appearance of the town but missed many of "the old familiar faces." Almost a new generation has grown up since Mr. South-all left Hondo to cast his fortunes with the people of the border.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Heyen and

Captain and Mrs. Eugene V. Behan
were here over Sunday visiting Mrs. Behan's parents, Judge and Mrs. Ed de Montel. Mrs. Behan was formerly Miss Edith de Montel.
Captain Behan is located at Ft.

Judge M. Schorobiny was a caller at the Anvil Herald office Monday.

Mrs. Ella Woods and son, Selby, returned Thursday from San Antonio where Mr. Woods has been under treatment for a fractured jaw and other injuries sustained when knocked from his horse by striking a tree while chasing a cow. The young man is making rapid recovery and looks well, considering the ordeal he has suffered.

E. J. Crozier, County Agent of Hays county, and the following Boy
Club members stopped over in Hondo
Thursday night: Sidney Donaldson, Kyle, Max Michalelis, Kyle, Randolph Sledge, Kyle and Thomas Solomon, Kyle. They are enroute to Uvalde, where they will take part in the Livestock Judging contests to be held at that place.

The first road work in the town of Hondo under the bond issue is in progress, connecting Bandera Avenue with the Tarpley road. The work now in progress extends down Bandera Avenue to the south side of College Square—down to the Eugen Huesser corner and that part of the town this week has presented an animated appearance with tractors and mule teams drawing graders, scrapers, plows and other road-working paraphernalia. The graveled part of the street will be thirty feet in width, built in an oval shape,
and will intersect the Tarpley road near the Roberts place. It has not as yet been determined when the work will be extended down to the end of Bandera Avenue at the railroad crossing.

Henry Bohlen was exhibiting at this office last week a curiosity in the shape of a hen egg. The egg was about the size of a goose egg and had a very thin shell. When broken, the shell was found to contain not only the yolk and white of an ordinary egg, but had another perfectly formed egg, shell and all, inside of the big shell. In confirmation of the truthfulness of this paper and its informant, we will say that these freaks are not uncommon;
we saw them before the country
"went bootleg."

Among other matters transacted by the Commissioners Court at its session this week was the appropriation of $300.00 to aid the people living in the Brown-Wood Addition to Hondo to secure the opening of a street through the block just east of the residence of Mrs. Ella Woods.
The opening of a street through this block would prove a great convenience to the people living in that portion of the town. The Anvil Herald will endeavor to give a synopsis of the Court's work in a subsequent issue.

The County Commissioners Court
has been in session this week, a good portion of the time being taken up visiting and viewing the road work in progress in various parts of the county. Owing to the necessary work occasioned by the receipt of the $400,000 road bonds and the necessary work occasioned by their preparation for delivery to the purchasers, the Court was unable to complete its work this week, and the term will probably extend until the middle of the coming week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Haldy and children were here Saturday from east of Castroville and were interested visitors to the Anvil Herald's printing plant. Mr. and Mrs. Haldy were in Hondo looking for some Black Minorca chickens as they want to join the ranks of those who raise only purebred poultry. One of the most encouraging tendencies of the times, agriculturally speaking, is the elimination of the scrub and the mongrel and the substitution of purebred animals of all classes.

Fritz Fuchs of Taylor, Manager
of the Yancey Oil & Gas Company,

Taylor, and with Messrs. L. J.

liminary arrangements for drilling ranch. Drilling is expected to begin soon on this new test.

MRS. THERESA DECKER.

Mrs. Theresa Decker, nee Wantz, died at her home at Vandenburg on Sunday morning at 5 o'clock, after an illness of over five years.

She was born near Strassbourg, Alsace, in 1838, and came to Texas with Castro's colony about 1847 with her parents.

She was married to Jos. Decker 64 years ago and they had a large family—nine surviving children, Louis, Henry and Robert Decker, and Mrs. Ben Riff, Mrs. E. R. Leinweber and Mrs. Louis Rothe, and Misses Louisa and Lina Decker. All are living in and around Hondo.

Mrs. Decker is survived also by her husband, Joseph Decker, and a brother, Mr. Xavier Wantz.

She had lived 27 years where she died and was highly esteemed by all who knew her, for she was of a very kind, gentle character, and was always ready to help the needy, for she had known the hardships of pioneer days.

The funeral took place from the residence on Monday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. F. Pallanche, Catholic Priest of Hondo. A large number of neighbors and friends were present to accompany her mortal remains to their resting place, a family burying ground near her and several of the children's homes.

May she rest in peace. A Requiem High Mass for the repose of her soul was celebrated on Thursday at the Catholic Church.

PECAN TREES NEED CARE IN INFANCY.

By J. H. Burkett,
Pecan Specialist, Texas Department
of Agriculture.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 4.—The planting of pecan trees is no easy job for the amateur. It requires horticultural judgement combined with care, but by following the instructions as herein outlined, anyone may plant and grow pecan trees with success. To be assured of success in the planting of pecan trees, one assumes that the tree has been properly dug and handled by the nurserymen. Observation leads to the conclusion that much of the indifferent results in the past in getting pecan trees to grow is chargeable to the carelessness of the workmen in digging and packing the pecan trees preparatory to delivering to the planter, and the exposure to wind and sun by either nurserymen or planter. If the root system of the pecan tree is unduly exposed to the wind and the sun to the extent that the roots dry out and become shriveled, no amount of after care given it can overcome the damage caused by this unwanted carelessness and indifference. Exposing the root system even for as short a period as five minutes may injure its vitality or kill it outright.

Time to Plant.

To obtain the best results, it is thought that pecans should be planted as soon as they have become dormant in the early winter. However, the writer has had success planting throughout the winter and early spring. One season several were planted the first day of April and 100 per cent lived. If it is not convenient to plant in the early part of the winter, good results can possibly be obtained by planting a little later.

Digging the Hole.

Presupposing that the tree has been properly dug and delivered to the planter in good condition, the next important step is to preserve the vitality of the tree. A soon as the trees are received the bundle should be opened up and heeled in or covered with wet hay or straw. Then in transferring the trees to the field a good plan is to prepare a barrel of water and clay mixed so as to make an adhesive mass, called puddling the roots. Place a few trees in the puddling barrel and let them remain until ready to set in the hole. Make an excavation for the tree at least two and one-half feet wide (three and one-half feet would be better) and three to four feet deep. Throw out the surface soil on one side and the subsoil on the other. If the subsoil is at all of an impervious nature it would be a good plan to take a posthole digger and make a posthole in the center of the excavation two or three feet deeper, going down beyond the impervious subsoil strata. The excavation should be filled with a good quality of top soil sufficiently deep to permit the end of the roots of the tree to rest on the bottom. After this the excavation should be filled with water and allowed to soak away.

Setting the Tree.

Set the tree and fill in around it with good moist top soil. Do not let any manure or fertilizer come in contact with the roots. The foregoing applies especially to all soils where the pecan is not native, or to soils that have an impervious subsoil near the surface. If the soil should be a deep alluvial, sandy transported soil where the pecan grows well naturally, then so large an excavation is not necessary, and a hole sufficiently large to permit the planting of the tree with its roots in natural position is all that is necessary. After the tree is set the soil should be gradually filled in, and the tree made firm by tramping or ramming the soil around it. Be sure to avoid bruising the roots. A good plan to settle the soil around the tree is to flood the soil around the tree, and as the soil becomes saturated, lightly shake the tree side-wise and up and down so as to allow the soil to settle around the roots.

Rounding of Soil

After the tree is set and the soil settled, the soil should be well rounded about the tree and a trench formed a foot or two away. A month or two later water should be applied in sufficient volume to thoroughly saturate the surrounding soil as deep as the tree roots. After the water soaks away, and while the soil is still wet, dry earth should be piled so as to prevent evaporation. The first season is the critical period in the life of the transplanted tree.

A mulch of straw, hay, or sacks filled with hay will prevent rapid evaporation of the moisture and will also have a tendency to keep the ground around the tree protected from the direct rays of the sun as well as giving protection from the drying of the wind.

When you plant a pecan tree remember that you are not only planting for your own benefit, but to bless the generations that are to follow; that you are planting to transmit to posterity a living monument to your memory long years after you have "shuffled off this mortal coil," and that you can not too much care in giving it a start.

Care Is Essential.

If you are not situated so as to give all the care and attention is necessary to carry your tree through the first few years of infancy, it is advisable that you undertake the growing of trees, but leave this work to those who are more favorably situated and who are disposed to harbor some consideration, and that those who have planted, nurtured and weaned to posterity such an annually recurring blessing, certainly had a thought for its future well-being and happiness.

It is no advantage to you or the nurserymen who grew the tree or to the development of the industry, to buy it to perish for lack of care. Patriotic nurserymen not like to sell their trees to one who is going to neglect them, and neglect will certainly not stimulate the development of the pecan industry.

As soon as the soil becomes around your tree the top should be cut back severely, and the tree covered with some good protective compound. There are many compounds which may be used for this purpose. The paint manufacturing companies put out a special product for this purpose. Ordinary grafting wax is also good. M. paraffin serves admirably, and be applied with a small paint brush. Grafting wax for such use is times made as follows: Two parts of beeswax and one part rosin, together and stir. After removal from the fire and add a proportion of linseed oil to make and keep the mass pliable.

MRS. JACOB HABY, SR.

Another of Castroville's early pioneers has passed beyond those dim portals called death, and when Mrs. Jacob Haby, Sr. closed her eyes in her last long sleep, Time wrote "Finis" to a career that had reached over a vast span of years, as this ephemeral mortal existence is reckoned in years, and had witnessed vast changes in the ways of life and of material existence.

Mrs. Jacob Haby, Sr. was born at Alsace-Lorraine 86 years ago. In 1852 she came to America, with other members of her family, and settled at Castroville, then a struggling frontier outpost of civilization exposed to the dangers of Indian depredations. Her husband, then a young man, had preceded her to America, having joined the Castro colony the first year of its existence, 1844. They were married in the Catholic Church in Castroville in 1856, and lived to celebrate their golden wedding in 1916. Mr. Haby has since died. To this venerable couple, to whom it was given to go hand in hand over such a lengthy span of time in the closest companionship vouchsafed to human kind, there were born sixteen children, eight sons and eight daughters. The surviving children are Messrs. Louis, George, Albert, Isidor, Ben, Ambrose and Frank Haby, and Mesdames Max Boehme, Caroline Kilhorn, Theresa Rihn, Norman Frazier, Jacob Haby, Jr., and Otto Haby. She is survived by sixty grandchildren and twenty-one great grandchildren. Three children, Mary, Josephine and Henry, preceded their mother in death.

Mrs. Haby died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Caroline Kilhorn, where she had made her home for the past six months, Sunday, February 12, 1922. Her remains were buried in the Catholic cemetery in Castroville Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, after a requiem High Mass in the church of which she had been a lifelong consistent communicant. There was a large and sorrow-stricken attendance at the funeral.

The bereaved family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Yours gratefully,
The Family.

CARD OF THANKS.

EDITORIALS By The Editor.

THE REAL HERO.

It is not the deed, but the danger
That tests the hero's soul;
And the songs of strength are not
So rare

As the sign of self control.
A torch, a cheer and a niche of fame
For the man who met the foe,
But here's to the men who fail or win
In a stress we do not know.

Some are cheered by a nation's honor,
And some by a steadfast friend;
And some by the light of woman's love

Till the strain and strife have end,
And after the story is writ and read
The heart of the world is stirred.
But here's to the man who toiled
alone
And whose tale was never heard.

There is joy in a fateful struggle—
If the watchers understand,
There is joy in the lift of another's
load

By a loyal heart or hand,
But some things fall to the lot of life—

And ever it must be so—
Some no others can understand,
And some no one can know.

In the long, long run we reckon
Each man at his social worth;
With a partial glance at his circumstance

And the stars above his birth.
But under the breast that stands
the test

The heart tides ebb and flow.
Then here's to the one whose duty's done

In a stress we do not know.

The Kentucky legislature is gravely debating a measure to forbid the teaching of the theory of evolution in the public schools of that state. Darwin may be mistaken in his theory that man evolved from the monkey, but one has but to witness the antics of some state legislators to know that it is easy and common for legislators to evolve into monkeys. Behold Kentucky!

The ex-service men cast several million votes. The ex-service men—some of them—want a bonus and want it mighty bad. The Republicans—all of them—want the votes of the ex-service men mighty bad. But there are several million more voters who do not want to be taxed to pay a bonus than there are ex-service men who are desirous of receiving a bonus. And therein lies the Republicans' dilemma. They want votes. They are going to need votes. Mighty bad!

The senate passed an act legalizing co-operative marketing by a vote of 58 to 1. This is one of the measures sponsored by the farm bloc in the senate and is remarkable for showing the strength of this body in our national legislature. We have not seen a copy of the law, but presume it is modeled after some of the co-operative laws of Europe which have transformed the farm folk of some of those states from a penurious peasantry to an affluent, home-owning citizenry. If fraught with the same possibilities for the good that has already achieved in Europe, this is a piece of constructive legislation that will be productive of much and lasting good.

Our storm-tossed governor, in his search for a "paramount issue" that can breathe some life and spirit into his campaign for re-election and smother the queries of the curious as to how old he is or what he thinks of the Ku Klux Klan—in these troubled days of "organized" crime and outlawry—has given it out, cautiously from behind closed doors where he has been closeted with some of the leading "educators" of the state, that he is going to go before the people with an educational program. Just what this program is the Governor has not yet deigned to inform a waiting public. It may be a meritorious one. We are not without reason for believing that it is, for the Governor is a discreet politician. We have much reason to hope that it is, for the schools of Texas are dear to the hearts of more people than possibly any other public institution in the state. But however meritorious the program may be, it will have the effect of dragging our entire school system into the mire of politics. Politics is the curse of Texas' schools as it is. The Governor's program can not possibly help the situation in this particular. It can but aggravate it.

FLETCHERIZED FARM FACTS By Fletcher Davis.

In the lull between the plowing season, the season of preparation, and planting time is the farmer's opportunity to "pick up the unravelled threads" of his business.

It is during this lax time, when work is not pressing and the value of every precious moment is not measured by the amount of result-producing work that can be forced into it, that a careful survey of the farm equipment can be most profitably made. Every piece of farm machinery, every implement and every piece of harness that will be needed later on in the production of the crops should be leisurely and carefully gone over, broken or worn-out parts should be mended or replaced and extra parts should be secured and kept in reserve to replace weak, defective or worn parts that may give way under the stress and strain of a busy day later on at a time when every moment counts.

Costly delays in the work being done, tiresome and needless trips to town or to the repair shops when one is needed in the field, and sometimes, when the broken piece is a part of a little used machine, long and expensive waits for the part to come from a distant factory may be largely avoided by these simple and timely precautions. Put the farm equipment in the best possible order now.

Drainage ditches can be opened up and terraces can be repaired. This should, where possible, be done in advance of the spring rains so that the terrace embankments be not broken by freshets and the excess rainfall may find easy outflow through the drains. All incipient washes and gullies should be stopped. It is little less than a crime for one to allow the high-priced farm lands of the present day to become washed and gullied.

In this connection, it is not out of place to say that the practice largely in vogue on many rolling, hilly farms of running the rows up and down hill is rapidly transforming many splendid farms into barren piles of gravel stones that will soon become utterly valueless as fields. This suicidal policy should cease. All rolling lands should be properly terraced and, as far as practicable, the rows should parallel the terraces and run with the contour of the land. Where the topography of the land will not permit the growing of tilled crops in this manner, the land should be devoted to some of the grass crops that need little or no tillage and which will sod the land.

Now is the time to burn off and clear the ditch banks, the fence rows and the waste places adjacent to the fields and about the farm. This will not only add materially to the sightliness and beauty of the farm, but will be the means—if done on a dry, cold day—of destroying countless insect pests and numerous noxious and useless weeds. This is a practice followed on most progressive farms and is considered by many as one of the most valuable means of keeping the boll weevil in check.

Another task too often deferred until the last moment but which should be attended to during the lull that comes just before the planting season is the securing of the necessary seeds for planting all of the various crops. This should never be put off, but a bountiful supply of good sound seed should be on hand well in advance of planting time. The man who defers supplying himself until the last moment takes the risk of having to pay extortionate prices, to have to take poor or inferior seeds or seeds from some undesirable variety, or a failure to secure any kind of seed at any price. Have you got your supply in readiness for the coming planting rush?

Not only should a supply of seeds be ready at hand for planting, but the germinating qualities of each assortment should be accurately known. It costs just as much to cultivate a given acre of land with half a stand as it does to cultivate an acre with a full stand. Obviously the full

REV. QUINN DEAD.

Rev. J. H. Quinn, O. M. I. rector of St. Mary's Catholic Church, and one of the best known and most loved of priests of Southwest Texas, died Sunday night at St. Joseph's Sanitarium, Hot Springs, Ark. He was 61 years old.

Father Quinn had been in poor health for several months. Some weeks ago he was taken to Hot Springs. The body will arrive in San Antonio late Wednesday night. Thursday it will be taken to St. Mary's Church, where it will lie in state all day. The office of the dead will be recited by the clergy Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Solemn requiem mass will be celebrated at the church Friday morning at 9 o'clock. Rev. A. A. Drossaerts, bishop of San Antonio, will deliver the sermon and give the absolution.

Father J. H. Quinn was born in Salem, Mass., a member of a well-known family. A brother is one of the Justices of the Massachusetts Supreme Court. He attended school for some time in Salem and later at Portage, Wis., where he had relatives. When he was 27 years old he entered the University of Ottawa, where he studied for the priesthood. Four years later he was graduated with honors and the same year ordained. For two years he was prefect of studies at the University of Ottawa.

In 1895 Father Quinn was transferred to Buffalo, where he was made rector of the Church of the Holy Angels. In that capacity he displayed great energy and initiative, building up the church until it became one of the leading Catholic Churches of Western New York.

As a result of too much work and failing eyesight, it became necessary for Father Quinn to leave Buffalo, and, in 1901, he came to Texas. On coming here he was chaplain of a convent at Castroville and in addition was occupied with missionary work in Southwest Texas. On December 1, 1908, he was transferred to San Antonio as rector of St. Mary's Church, which position he held up to the time of his death.

His health had been bad for some years, but he had none the less energy. Last year, while in attendance at the Hibernian Conference at Detroit, he suffered a breakdown. On his return to San Antonio he was ordered by physicians to take a long rest. Then came the flood and for some time he was occupied with plans for reconstruction and repairing the damage done by the flood. The strain proved too much for him. He suffered a final breakdown and went to Hot Springs. For a time he seemed to hover between life and death. Then there was an apparent improvement. Sunday came a relapse and the end.

stand will produce practically double the half stand and thus double the returns for the labor expended. If the seeds have a germinating power of only fifty per cent, if it is necessary to plant them at all, obviously twice the quantity must be planted, if a stand is desired or expected, as one would need to plant if the seeds had a hundred per cent germination. Do not cultivate semi-barren acres; know the germinating qualities of your seeds and plant for a full stand.

If unprepared with equipment for or knowledge of how to test your seeds, remember that the State Department of Agriculture, Austin, Texas, is equipped with an excellent seed laboratory for testing seeds. This laboratory is in the hands of experts who know how to secure an accurate test. And they will make this test for you and supply you with this needed and valuable information free to you if you ask them for it.

Why Suffer?

Cardui "Did Wonders for Me," Declares This Lady.

"I suffered for a long time with womanly weakness," says Mrs. J. R. Simpson, of 57 Spruce St., Asheville, N. C. "I finally got to the place where it was an effort for me to go. I would have bearing-down pains in my side and back—especially severe across my back, and down in my side there was a great deal of soreness. I was nervous and easily upset.

"I heard of Cardui and decided to use it," continues Mrs. Simpson. "I saw shortly it was benefiting me, so I kept it up, and it did wonders for me. And since then I have been glad to praise Cardui. It is the best woman's tonic made." Weak women need a tonic. Thousands and thousands, like Mrs. Simpson, have found Cardui of benefit to them. Try Cardui for your trouble.

PHILATHEA CLASS MEETS.

The Philathea Class met with Mrs. A. Horger Tuesday afternoon, January 14th, at 3:30 o'clock. Although the day was cold and dreary, the cheerfulness of the bright open windows and the genial hospitality of the members made the ten members who attended feel amply repaid for having braved the weather.

The meeting was opened with prayer, followed by each member reciting a verse of scripture containing the word "grace."

The committees then gave in their reports and a number of visits to sick were reported.

An hour was then spent in the study of the 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th chapters of Isaiah. Miss Bertha Barton explained the lesson in her usual able manner—making the study both interesting and instructive.

We wish that more of our Christian people would join us in this study and help us "study to show ourselves approved unto God—workmen that needeth not to be ashamed."

After the lesson, the hostess served delicious refreshments consisting of fruit salad, cheese patties, crackers, olives, hot chocolate and dainty sandwiches trimmed with little red hearts, reminding us that it was really St. Valentine's Day.

Our next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Chancey. Each member is requested to answer the call with a verse of scripture containing a promise.

The lesson will be the 16th to 19th chapters of Isaiah.

ROAD BONDS SIGNED.

The remaining $400,000 of Medina county's $800,000 Road Bond issue was signed Thursday by County Judge R. J. Noonan, County Treasurer J. J. Droitcourt and County Clerk S. A. Junugman, and the bonds were carried to Austin Friday by Judge Noonan and Mr. Droitcourt. The bonds were countersigned by the State Comptroller. The bonds were sold some time ago, but delivery was delayed owing to the engraving of the bonds, the approving of the record and other formalities that usually accompany transactions of this kind. The bonds will be delivered Saturday, as far as the sale is concerned, bringing to a close the biggest financial transaction Medina county has ever been a party to.

THE SPIRIT OF THE LEGION.

I am the American Legion, flesh and blood of America's fighting men, soul of those who sleep on Flanders Field and in the watery depths of the heaving ocean.

I am the American Legion. I am the voice of four million men who rallied to their country's flag when it was menaced. I cherish and hold sacred the memories of those stirring days, the valorous deeds and heroic sacrifices of the men in khaki and blue.

I am the American Legion. With ever watchful eyes I care for and look after the needs and wants of the maimed and disabled veterans of the great war. With tenderness and mercy I minister to them. With unrelenting strength and power I fight in the legislative halls of our country for their welfare and happiness. I turn the searchlight of pitiless publicity on inefficiency and unfairness toward the former service man.

I am the American Legion. I safeguard those rights and principles for which our warriors endured a screaming, shrieking hell in far off lands—for which they gave unstintingly of their warm life blood. The constitution of our country I uphold and will always defend.

I am the American Legion. I am strong with the strength of youth and wise with the wisdom of experience. In my ranks are care-free boys and gray-haired men—millionaires and paupers—statesmen and humble folk—all banded together for a common cause.

I am the American Legion. The great sturdy organization of veterans upon whose far-flung membership the sun never sets. My outposts are established in every land, in every clime; my banner is unfurled beside the Stars and Stripes wherever Americans are gathered. I AM THE AMERICAN LEGION.

The total membership for the American Legion in Texas to date is 8,191. Total membership this date last year was 6,600.

TWELVE NEW POSTS HAVE BEEN ORGANIZED.

The Oldest Man in the World

Just part of a skull, two molar teeth and a thigh bone! Pieced together they made—what? One of the most perplexing mysteries in the study of human history. We've these the remains of an ape-like man who lived 500,000 years ago?

Scientists believe that they were; they call him the "Dawn Man," and out of the record embedded in the rocks they have reconstructed the conditions of his life. How he killed his food and tore the raw flesh from the bones; how he married and fought and died! How little by little he clawed and clubbed his way up to mastery over the beasts. It is a fascinating, gripping story, but it is only one of a thousand stories that stir your blood in this greatest book of modern times.

H. G. WELLS' "Outline of History"

Now Offered You at One-Third the Original Price

A history that goes back 100,000 years—that traces man's race begins 500,000 years ago—that follows him down through the ages to the Babylon of Nebuchadnezzar, the Egypt of Cleopatra, the France of Napoleon, the America of today, through the Great War and on into the future. United States of the World—that gives ALL history as one story—what is better?

See why the history of the world, but the science of the world, the outstanding literature of the world; the philosophy of the world—a vast panorama unfolded before your eyes by the most graphic word painter of modern times.

And The REVIEW of REVIEWS too

Wells begins with the dawn of time; before there were men; before there were even reptiles. In broad, magnificent strokes he paints the picture, bringing you straight down to 1920. Alexander, Persia and Genghis Khan, Constantine and Alhar, Gullone and Maron Poin. Never a dull moment. Never a paragraph that is not vital.

And where Wells stops the Review of Reviews takes up the story. It is the history of the past; the Review of Reviews records and interprets the history of the world today. It is fitting that these two should be joined together. By joining them we are able to offer you an educational course such as you get at no school in the land.
